

About ESPID

Learn about the Society behind the Meeting

The European Society for Paediatric Infectious Diseases, ESPID, forms the basis for European investigators interested in infectious diseases in children and infection prevention in childhood.

The society is engaged in a number of activities including the organisation of multicentre trials, international exchange of infectious disease fellows and an annual Meeting. Membership includes subscription to the Paediatric Infectious Disease Journal in addition to many other benefits.

A graphic with a light blue background. On the left, there are silhouettes of two children jumping joyfully. In the center, the text 'WELCOME TO ESPID' is written in large, bold letters, with 'WELCOME TO' in yellow and 'ESPID' in dark blue. To the right of this text, there is a circular logo featuring a map of Europe and the acronym 'ESPID'. Below the main text, a dark blue banner contains the text 'The European Society for Paediatric Infectious Diseases.' in white. Below this banner, there is a paragraph of text: 'Bringing together 1,900 members, already having organised 42 Annual Meetings all over Europe and many-many educational courses and research meetings.' To the right of this paragraph, the website 'WWW.ESPID.ORG' is written in blue. A yellow arrow points from the text to a QR code located at the bottom right of the graphic. The entire graphic is decorated with small orange dots and white clouds.

WELCOME TO ESPID

The European Society for Paediatric Infectious Diseases.

Bringing together 1,900 members, already having organised 42 Annual Meetings all over Europe and many-many educational courses and research meetings.

WWW.ESPID.ORG

x

Applications for membership can be made online at www.espid.org or by contacting: admin@espid.org